What he did was wrong. Completely wrong. It was a monstrosity and horrendous. And I will not try to justify his actions. But out of respect, I ask that people would come to realize that God is greater than anyone or their actions. If you call yourself a Christian, please look into the many characters in the Bible. Paul, Moses, and David were all counted as murderers. Yet God was able to use them despite their terrible sins. To believe that God cannot save someone even though they repent of their sin is to limit God. Ken has turned from his wicked ways and is a believer in Christ. I have no doubt that I will be with him in heaven. He is dealing with the consequences of what he has done in more ways than you will know. But please, before you condemn this man, make sure that your own salvation is secure and know why it is.

Matthew, I love you. But I truly in my heart believe he has not changed. Look where he is and what he was just caught for. Lord knows how many victims there are in between myself and this person he tried to solicit for sex online. That is 35 years of molesting. the Lord may forgive him but I at least now cannot.

I can't remember who said it, but when we get to heaven we will be surprised by who we do see there and surprised by who we don't see. Only God knows the heart, but even Jeffrey Dahmer confessed and accepted Christ. Jesus' blood is enough to cover all sins, no matter how terrible. The potential for evil is in all of us and the potential for saving all of us is in Jesus' blood. I will pray that this man grows in his faith and will work out his salvation.

Jane, I had no idea and we saw each other every day! You were only minutes away from me and could have literally run to my house for cover. My deepest sympathies! I work now for WHOA Women (women of faith) who share their stories to help others. If you ever want to share your story and have it published to help others, please let me know.

Jane - I was truly touched reading your post. I don't usually respond to posts of people I don't know, but something in the pure honesty of your words compelled me to respond. I pray that you will let the anger toward yourself go, you were a victim, completely victimized. I pray for healing of your mind and soul. May you find peace and love for yourself, you truly deserve it. God bless you.

Janey, I had no idea! What a terrific woman & mother you have become in spite of this terrible ordeal in your life. You were a child! That's probably the hardest part...thinking you didn't do enough, should have turned him in etc. HE was the monster, the breaker of your trust (probably others' too).

Look how much GOOD you do in the world in spite of this horrible time in your life!

There are so many things I understand better now... A constant need for approval, crazy acting out in high school, painful relationship with my parents, running away from conflict, creating a fantasy world for myself, being weak in relationships, and so many bad bad decisions - I was a broken child.. I am slowly slowly learning to be a strong woman! I can't tell you I have forgiveness in my heart - but I can feel a weight lifted by getting this out in the open.. For every child that feels alone, frightened, and powerless - I lift them up in prayer and hope someone listens to them.

This is my adopted brother - he molested and abused me for years - probably from the time I was 3 or 4 until about age 11. He is a monster. I was terrified of telling anyone for a very long time and my life has been a constant struggle. I hope he never hurts a child again - and I am bitterly angry at myself for not coming forward when I was younger and possibly stopping him then.

Evil, Evil man..Children should be protected by their parents and as a child you are to scared sometimes to say anything, but good for you for saying it now. There is a special place in hell for child molesters! Big hug to you, love you too.

I am so sorry for you Jane. Concentrate on your beautiful daughter and know what a great job you did raising her through all of your struggles. That monster will pay when he gets his final judgement!

I hope you don't mind a friend of a friend (Theresa Gokey) commenting.

Good for you for being able to talk about it now. I'm proud of you. It's one of the hardest things to do. I know. I was abused for 5 years by my father.

I just wanted to tell you, it gets better. The more you talk about it, the more you get counseling, the more you let others in, it gets better.

It doesn't go away. Sadly, I don't think it ever will. There will always be unwanted memories, unwelcome dreams, unexpected reminders.

But it does get better.

All the best, and my prayers are with you.
